

Petra and Peter Holtzmann

Partnership since 1898 - the basis for today and tomorrow

"I cannot say whether things will get better if we change; what I can say is they must change if they are to get better."

This quotation from Georg Christoph Lichtenberg has fascinated me so much, that I have made it to a kind of philosophy of life. Even if the ancient tub, in front of which I am standing on the photograph in the Vatican Palace in Rome, perhaps would disagree. But than of course, there are shapes which are unbeatable.

■ The aim of Holtzmann & Sohn GmbH is to always demonstrate that things can improve without forgetting about the positive characteristics in the past. Accordingly, our maxims postulate that:

■ We want a positive and pleasant atmosphere in our business. Only when our employees and we feel comfortable in our environment, we are able to attend our business partners in a creative and proficient way.

■ It is our endeavour to transmit as much expertise and responsibility as possible to our employees. Only this way, we are able to understand the problems of our customers and solve them as soon as we can.

■ It has to be our goal, always to offer the best and most reliable project process. In this context, not the competition sets the benchmark, but the almost utopian error rate of 0%.

■ The entrepreneurial decisions should not depend on the consent of the bank. We will remain independent with a significant equity ratio.

■ We constantly work to reduce costs without compromising on service. Only this way we are able to resist the immense competition from large corporations. We are and we remain: the medium-sized company for expert craft

Yours faithfully,
Peter Holtzmann
